RANDOLPH TABLET

Restored at William and Mary College Chapel.

UNVEILED BY DESCENDANT

The Memorial Furnished by Mrs. John L. Williams-Sir John's Great Granddaughter Draws the Veil.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) WILLIAMSBURG, VA., June 25.—An imposing scene witnessed the closing ex-ercises at William and Mary College toercises at William and Mary Codings to-day, when a handsome mural tablet, a memorial to Sir John Randolph, was unveiled in the college chapel. The oc-casion was impressive because of the fame of Randolph and of the time and circumstances that environed the un-quaint old chapel, so venerated by Ill Virginia, was in gala attire. Great treamers of orange and white stretched rom the library to the rostrum. Over the portraits of Jefferson, Tyler, Monroe, the portraits of Jefferson, Tyler, Monroe, Madison, Blair and the others that adorn the walls, were wreaths of evergreen. On the rostrum sat some of Virginia's foremost men, while the audience was representative of the youth and beauty of the Peninsula.

PRIMEENTATION ADDRESS.

PRESENTATION ADDRESS.
Judge Beverly T. Crump, of Richmond, on behalf of the donors, made the presentation speech. The address was peculiarly felicitous, an interesting feature being the reading from the number of the Virginia Gazette current of the week of his death the quaint contemporary account of Sir John's virtues and qualities as a man and statesman. The vell was as a man and statesman. The vell was drawn by Miss Charlotte Randolph Be miss, of Richmond, a granddaughter of the donors, and a descendant of John Randolph. Dr. John W. Lawson, presi-dent of the Board of Visitors, in a neat accepted the gift on behalf of address, accepted the gift on behalf of the college.

As the vell was drawn aside by Miss Bemiss, a charming little lady, exposing the elegant tablet, with its imposing Latin inscription, the effect was grand, and the audience seemed electrified by its beauty.

THE TABLET.

The tablet is a white marble block, 7½ feet long, bearing in black letters the inscription, an exact copy of the original one, which was destroyed when the college burned in 1859.

The following relative to John Randolph and the original tablet, which has just been restored by his "great-great-grand-daughter and her children and children's children, was prepared by a well-known writer and will prove interesting:

"This tablet, which perished in the fire of 1859, was over 7½ feet high and cost originally £130. The Latin inscription tells us that Sir John Randolph was the sixth son of William Randolph, of Warwickshire, and Mary Isham, of Northamptonshire, in England. He was born in 1623 and attended William and Mary College, where he displayed great capacity as a student. He then, attended Gray's Inn, in London, and graduated with high honors as barrister. Returning to Virginla he was successively elected Clerk of the Senate, Speaker of the House of Burgesses, and Treasurer of the colony. His reputation as a lawyer was great, and for a long time he represented the College of William and Mary in the General Assembly-He was $ke first Recorder of the berough of Norfolk.

of Norfolk.

"He had in an eminent degree that ingenua totius corporis pulcritude et quidam senatorius decor, which Pilny mendions and which is somewhere not unhappily translated, "The air of a man of quality." For there was a moral grandeur in his presence and deportment which likened him to General Washington. He died in the very prime of his powers, March 6, 1737. He had a very grand uneral. He was burled in a vault underneath the chapel floor, where repose several other worthies, such as Lord Botetourt, Judge Robert Nelson, Peyton Randolph, Bishop Madison, &c. According to his own directions, he was carried to the place of interment by six honest, industrious poor housekeepers of Brutonagarish, among whom the sum of £20 wax divided. His funeral cratton in Latin was pronounced by the Rev. William Dawson, one of the professors of the college, and all the dignitaries of the colony attended the solemn exercises.

"The family of Sir John Bandelen."

the college chapel by their father. One was Peyton Randolph, first president of the Continental Congress, and the other was John Randolph, the last Attorney-General of Virginia under the Crown, and father of Edmund Randolph, Secretary of State under President Washington.

While the tablet was "restored by the great-great-grandaughter of Sir John Randolph, her children and children's children," it is probably more accurate to say that the restoration was made in their names by the husband of a dear lady who in the former generation represents the beauty as well as the honor of the very honorable ancestor, one who, in the language of the great poet of England, is perfect and peerless made up of every creature's best. It is an open secret that this lady is Mrs. John L. Williams, of Richmond, the daughter of the late Dr. Skelton, of that city. ITS RESTORER.

Wilkes County Bows to the Will of the United States Supreme Court. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
GREENSBORO, N. C., June 25.—For five years the county of Wilkes has been resisting the payment of interest on a bond issue of $160,000, for the construction of the Northwestern North Carolina Railroad, running from Winston-Salem to Wilkesboro, claiming that the act of the Legislature authorizing them was unconstitutional and that the railroad had failed as agreed, to give the county any stock. The North Carolina Supreme Court decided that the Legislature act was unconstitutional and the bonds void. The case was taken up in the Federal Court and carried to the Supreme Court of the United States, which upheld the bond issue. Yesterday before United States Judge Boyd, the officials of Wilkes county appeared here and paid over to the amount of accumulated interest on the bonds, being $41,500. The matter now goes before Standing Master in Chancery Clement Manly, of Winston, who will audit the costs of the litigation and direct the distribution of the fund to the bond-holders.

The Gallantry of an Old Man Brings a Fiendish Battle to an End.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., June 25.—
A big fight occurred this morning on top of Quaker Gap Mountain, Stokes county. There were three or more on each side and a number of shots were exchanged. Captain King was killed and one or two others seriously wounded. Deputy Sherself of Smith was knocked down with a hoe by Russell Jones. King was shot by John Rhodes, who was arrested and committed to jail.

The trouble was the result of an old feud between neighbors. While the shooting was in progress a party of young cople, returning from Rade Mecum Springs, heard the shots and stopped. One old man, who was participating in the fight, saw the crowd and he sailed to his associates: "Boys, stop shouling until those young laddes and gentlemen pass."

Twenty Secure Employment in New England for the Summer.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

FORK UNION, VA., June 25.—It is announced that Mr. Lewis L. Jennings, of Culpeper, recently graduated from Richmond College with high distinction, has been elected to a place in the faculty of the Fork Union Academy. Mr. Jennings is a new addition to the teaching force, and his election suggests enlargement in the academy's work. The finest reports come as to the character and attainments of Mr. Jennings, and he will find Fork Union ready to welcome him into social and educational circles.

Major L. H. Walton has undertaken an unusual thing. There were about twenty of the academy students who felt that they would have to make some money in order to return to school here next session, and the major of the academy buttalion took them to Lowell Mass., and secured work for them, he staying and working with them during the summer. He writes that the boys are healthy, busy and happy, and "doing admirably well." Work is to begin on the academy building in a few days, and Mr. George Leigh has been chosen to have charge of it.

An almost mortal quiet seemed to settle the teachers and students of the academy took their departure. But the summer visitor is making his presence felt already Rev E. B. Hatcher, D. D. of Hall for the summer a few days ago, but he returns to his work in Maryland. Mr. B. A. Burgess has moved into his new residence on the Bremo Road, and Mr. George M. Bathaw is putting extensive improvements on his already attractive home, which will nearly double its comfort and capacity.

VICTORIES FOR YALE

PULLED A BETTER STROKE

The Elis in the Big Event Started at 32 to the Minute Gait, and Maintained it Until Winning Flag

NEW LONDON, CONN., June 25.

(By Associated Fress.)

NEW LONDON, CONN., June 25.—

For the first time on record Yale to-day triumphed over Harvard in all three of their boat races in the annual regatta on the Thames. The wearers of the Blue won the cight-cared 'Varsity by three and one-half boat lengths, the Freshman eight-cared race by two and a quarter lengths, and the 'Varsity four-oared race by one and a half lengths. In all three races Harvard put up a memoriable fight and went down to defeat after gallant struggles, in which her boys rowed out the last ounce of their strength.

The official time for the races was as follows:

'Varsity race—Yale, 20 minutes 19 4-5 seconds,

'Varsity four-oared race—Yale, 10 minutes 59 2-5 seconds; Harvard, 11 minutes 10 1-5 seconds,

Yale's three victories are attributed by the experts to the superiority of the streke taught Yale by John Kennedy

Yale's three victories are attributed by the experts to the superiority of the stroke taught. Yale by John Kennedy over that taught Harvard by her graduate coaches. So far as physical form was concerned, there was no choice between the crews, except with the possible exception that the Yale Freshmen outweighed their rivals over 7 pounds to the man. The 'Varsity was a surprise. The Freshman race had been conceded to Yale, while the four-oared race was also given to Yale in the great majority of the predictions.

GREAT CROWD.

race was also given to have majority of the predictions. GREAT CROWD.

The greatest crowd that ever came to this quiet old harbor town by rail and water, saw Harvard go down to defeat. The sky was duil and leaden, with the wind cold enough for October.

Referee William M. Ikelham, the old Columbian oarsman, at 11:30 notified the crews to get ready. In three minutes' time the 'Varsity four-oared was begun, and by half past one the big 'Varsity race was under way. The three ovents for which the blue and the crimson had trained for six months had been disposed of in a trifle over two hours without a break or a single incident to mar any one of the races. The story of the 'Varsity race will live long in the annals of college boating. Harvard led Yale almost to the mile and a half flag. Over the first mile it looked like Harvard's race. For the past ten days the coaches of both crews have said that the race would be finished within the first two miles.

STEADY STROKE.

Last night John Kennedy told his crew that they must strike a thirty-two per minute stroke, and hold to it right through the race, no difference what happened. It takes good head work and lots of nerve to row a lower stroke than the other crew when the other crew is every stroke.

It was now only a question of boat lengths. Harvard cheers had died away, and the broad Thames now resounded with one grand "Yale! Yale!" while from the decks of two hundred yachts the cannon were booming for a salute to the victor and a "bravo" for the vanquished. Finally the flag dropped. It was Yale's race by three good boat lengths.

Captain McGrew, who had rowed for Harvard as gallant a race as any man ever rowed for any college, fell over limp on his oar, while Duffy sank down in the shell from sheer exhaustion. Swaim, at bow, had also rowed out the last ounce of his power, and his oar slipped from his hand. Yale, strong with the nerve which victory givss, pulled on below the great drawbridge for two or three hoat lengths before her coxswain called his men to rest.

The story of the freshmen race is that of a long sprint by Yale's stalwart young-sters, with Harvard clinging to their heels in a plucky fight. In this race, as in the 'Varsity race, Harvard rowed a higher stroke than Yale, while the lat-ter took a 32 to the minute gait and hung to it with scarcely a variation of the stroke in the whole two miles. Yale got the best of the start and never lost the leaf the lead.

Yale led Harvard at the finish by just about one and a quarter boat lengths.

In the 'Varsity four-oar event, Harvard gave Yale another terrifle struggle.

In this race the Ells had to make a vig-
